[illegible]

Dublin, March 10, 1859

My Dear Mr Lucas — The passage in your letter rec'd yesterday which touched me most was that about ~~your~~ poor Mr Wallcutt growing over the poor returns from the Foreign Liberators. I could so much - bless by his pronouncing on a list of the defaulters real or suffered. I cannot find that many of them that are on the Label of having made away them — several have paid since the year came in, & of these I have not yet had from the names. But when Mr W. sends me the list I wish send a circular & forward it to every one of them & I think the money will come in. I think it might be an idea to send out a list of subscriptions as from voluntary steward agent in this matter — so that people who are really to pay can save needless trouble in the collection. I don't think it worth though I called to — for it is a sad pleasure to be able to help Even in [illegible] good efforts.

When Mr W. sends me his list with the dates due for I will mark off (and of my books) any which I have been paid for but have not yet been reported to you. Many persons subscribe to the Lib. with whom I have letter or no communication which have not been on the label of having made. I will send my circulars at the rate of my letters of solicitation & if it was signed by W. L. so much

I sent thanks for reflection of your letters on slavery & found [illegible] the better as he is generally regarded as the prejudiced one in the unfavourable accounts of the cases.

As to Miss Edna of a League I wd be a charming thing if it could be brought to bear - but I am very sceptical. I wish you luck but am very ofmuch of them.

Armistead - I have not been overwhelmed with books for review when I ask for them, he writes me letters but presents to authors my questions respecting them. I have never seen him - but am prejudiced against him on this account.
I think he is a somewhat dry Quaker & very cautious & timid.

Joseph Lupton. - Have never seen him. Believe he is a good fellow - but not over over burdened with brains - & a little "hard knuckly" as a rich man

The Pattens. - Excellent - but great Slaves at home. Anderson not fond of entry. Her sisters dont write at all.

The Wigham. - Mrs Wigham, Eliza, three sisters in Dublin Mrs Edmundson also as good as Sold. The brothers in Dublin somewhat dry & not active in A.S. matters.
Good Quaker stock.

Prof. Mitchell. - He very opinionated & very touchy in any way.
His wife a good - but a good deal swallowed up in him. She a fine woman - but has little time for any thing not immediately connected with the Dr - as she calls him.

Miss Tuke. - She does not like much personal publicity - Absorbed in the maintenance of the Asylum as her peculiar province.

Mrs Stephen of Bristol. - I hardly know - she is I believe a good woman - but is also a mere cipher.

Miss Whitelegge - Very good - but would be harder like to help much in Council.

Philip Carpenter. - Hardly know & dont like. He is I believe a saint in his way. Mr Robson has a very high opinion of him he is high principled - a hard worker - but pretty much loved up by conchological pursuits. About 18 months ago he was in Dublin & expressed a wish to see me. I addressed him one day in a entry & found I was myself. He looked at me with a blank expression, said nothing, turned away, & I have seen him no more. My wife was with me at the time.

Mr Hewitson I have no acquaintance with beyond an occasional shake hands on a visit. He here writes to or for the Advocate, & is I believe pretty absorbed by his engagement as a supernumerary to the post. He is a friend to the Linnean S. &c. but beyond this I hear nothing of him. He was on his hands the Philadelphia contributions would attract. I imagine he is not much use to Entomology.

W. Parker is a hard man in the employment of others. His heart is excellent - his judgement very small. He once boarded his wife and 5 or six children in a house to an unmarried at a very inconvenient time. The poor woman is a born lady and was greatly disturbed by the want of her bed. He has a long tongue, very intemperate, & one of the stupidest men I ever met with, in whom I could perceive his father takes great satisfaction.

Francis Bond Bond I am informed by Mr Robson took no part with the abolitionists in America when he was there. This engaged me for I had the highest opinion of him.

E. Matthews has never had any opinion or warm feeling for the Ent. Soc. but as he never opposed it that I could hear of, I did my best to keep him in countenance as an Ent. man differing with individuals &c. Mr Chapman terms him, & united by his high standard perhaps with partiality but this would be an unfair test for most of us, myself included.

Thomas Thorpe is a good rich man, very odd & very generous, the I have never seen.

Edward Barnes patronised & assisted the Leeds Entomologists - but when Dr Bowerbank came he snubbed them & patronised him. He can hardly ever trust any one who lives by an authors reputation.

J. W. Dawson is poor, paltry & not his own master - I have never seen him but have always found him friendly in correspondence

On the whole there are a real incongruous medley in every thing excepting a mutual friendly feeling towards the cause. Except in a few cases it would be too much to speak of a strong interest. I mentioned that many of them are poor & that their occupations & circumstances forbid the chance of their being able to do much in the way of personal cooperation. Your case is a good advantage and seems to me in the U.S. one in which you can quietly & easily & spend more freely & can form a part of the future. Here if a man misses his hold when clambering or creeping upwards he will probably never get a chance. - I am merely a middle class man of moderate means, & I am only for from accurately [illegible] the exact circumstances may not be met by the exact income. I am very industrious & spend about 12 hours daily in my office. I am in very good & busy practice & much better than annually of which half my time I see little or no client.

A real working meeting, deliberating, acting League would be delightful - but I see neither the people, the circumstances nor the money that would make such a scheme practicable. To make such efforts in England, very large sums have generally been handed down by a few rich men who public spirited who were very zealous in the cause they aimed to promote. Public I regard as a good man according to his light - but lights with the attendant vices & small shades of bigotry. Mrs Chapman attributes to him as I think a real exaggerated determination & influence for evil. I have had no acquaintance whatever with him for many years - he would not speak to me if I were to meet him. He is an intensely obstinate man with a sense of head & a weak head.

As to the accounts I wish to say nothing. May as you state them submit to any future time to revision & correction.

I had a long letter from him & but with the true Western secrecy he made no mention of his [illegible] cause.

He often heard incidentally of Lucia's illness I wrote to Rome a day or two time hardly hoping for an answer if she is alarmingly ill.

Your particulars about G.T. were very painful. Any to the [illegible] of husband trouble it is a real difficulty can to meet.

We have heard twice from my two Richard - he when the country seems to stay a year at least. He had an [illegible] with employment & was in good health & spirits. We should always be glad to hear about you. I feel far less anxiety about Richard than I do about his brother

Yours truly & affectionately
Eliz. Cady Stanton

Yours truly & affectionately
Susan B. Anthony

I send you a copy of my address & a few letters on [illegible] which you will find the explanation. I wish you would find time to write me a few lines

There was no one in my writing about the margin for there is plenty of room left. I believe I promised you that Mrs Remnant came to my house with Mr Robinson whom I greatly liked. Mrs R. was obliged to hasten on to the Edmondsons much pleased with her excursion but in alarm of one of her daughters being ill of scarlet fever so that the poor thing had to be left all alone. Mrs Edmondson was very kind & brought her about in her car every where. She (Mrs R.) has been more than a kind wife my old friend Mrs Shackleton who knew her in America & ~~to be back~~ was living in her old home at Ballitore 24 miles from Dublin. She is announced to hold a public meeting in Dublin this evening. I mean to deliver a lecture - should circumstances have united and prevented. I hear her highly spoken of & am anxious to see for myself. She is also to lecture in a few days before the mechanics institute. She is ~~also~~ invited to take Shrewsbury Chair I believe some engagements in England.
I hear from Leeds respecting about the advocate to be lodged who regularly forwards the American copies.

I have had a good letter from one of the Leeds Young men requesting the refreshment of the Leeds A.S. clergy who spoke at their meeting I have since backed up Dr Domeney the Sec. of the A.B.C.F.M. —

As I write no later than this to write to my Contributors & to send a few words to the Chairman I must conclude Remain Dear ever truly

Richd D Webb

We have had little but delightful mild weather for months past, Today is the first very wet day & ever to keep but the temperature is mild as autumn
